Synopsis

In order to love, you must have: a healthy dose of audacity, a touch of modesty, a happy-go-lucky attitude, a flair for exaggeration, a tendency to lie, a well-balanced capacity for jealousy, a fertile imagination, and a trace of insincerity. To love, you must be able to: leave each other, allow for doubt, argue, make up, desire each other. To love, you must know how to be: faithful, unfaithful, obstinate, weak, complicit. And to learn to do so sometimes, now and then, often, regularly, and to believe it (always).
